

Josie Rush

709 Pitt Street, 1R
Pittsburgh, PA 15221
(814) 201-4914
rushj@duq.edu

Education:

Duquesne University, MA, English Literature (2014)

Seton Hill University, BA, English Literature (2012)

Teaching Experience Summary:

Tutor Volunteer at Neighborhood Academy (Fall 2013 - Present)

Writing Consultant Mentor, Duquesne University (Fall 2012- Present)

Writing Consultant, Writing Center, Seton Hill University (Fall 2008- 2012)

- Collaborate with students on their writing
- Compile records and research based on writers served
- Teach and organize workshops on various writing concerns
- Assist in training new consultants

Selected Internship Experience

Writer and Website Manager, National Catholic Center for Holocaust Education, Seton Hill University, Fall 2010 (continued work as volunteer 2010-2012)

- Wrote articles and attended events held by and concerning the National Catholic Center for Holocaust Education
- Edited articles for website
- Maintained website and Facebook page

Intern at Writing Center, Writing Center, Seton Hill University Fall 2011

- Collected and processed research to discover unmet needs of writers
- Created online material to market the Writing Center's services and provide writers with new resources

Publication

“Picturing a Better Future: Media Literacy in Genocide Education” The Ethel LeFrak Proceedings (to be published January 2014)

- Pedagogical discussion of significance of incorporating media literacy into genocide education

Selected Conference Papers and Presentations

Holocaust and Technology Conference (April 2012)

- Presented essay, “Picturing a Better Future,” and shared resources and methodologies for teaching media literacy in Holocaust courses.

East Central Writing Center Association (March 2011)

- Researched and presented on the role of assessment in one-on-one sessions with a student.
- Developed a workshop and training activity for other Writing Centers.

Seton Hill Humanities Conference (April 2011)

- Wrote and presented a paper on existential morality in Albert Camus’s “The Stranger.”

Seton Hill Humanities Conference (April 2012)

- Wrote and presented paper on Measure for Measure

Mid-Atlantic Writing Center Association Conference (April 2012)

- Researched and presented on role of technology in Writing Centers

Leadership and Selected Awards

English Graduate Organization Public Relations Chair (2013)

Lexicon Literary Journal (2013)

Sigma Tau Delta (English Honor Society 2011-Present)

Pasquale DiPasquale Award (2012)

Ethel LeFrak Outstanding Student Scholar of the Holocaust Award (2011)

English Club President (2011-2012)

Murphy Scholarship (2010 and 2011)

Student Anti-Genocide Coalition (STAND)